

Hologram

Our reality here on earth is a hologram. A hologram is defined as follows by Merriam Webster's Online Dictionary:

a three-dimensional image reproduced from a pattern of interference produced by a split coherent beam of radiation (such as a laser) also : the pattern of interference itself

It's a bit wordy, but dictionaries have to be that way. Their our language base along with grammar. We get the nouns right then apply actions in time. This book was written in English. The English language has twelve verb tenses, twelve expressions of time in which an action, the verb in the grammar model, can be applied to an object, the object in the grammar model, by a subject, the subject in the grammar model.

The twelve verb tenses are: present simple, present continuous, present perfect, present perfect continuous, past simple, past continuous, past perfect, past perfect continuous, future simple, future perfect, future continuous, future perfect continuous. Most people do not know the verb tenses by name, yet they use them on a daily basis. Grammar is a map of time.

Space-time is an infinite set of co-ordinates atop existence. Existence itself goes beyond time. We can therefore say that time is a temporary condition. A bit ironic, but we understand that time is only the measurement of things that come and go in the hologram of the earth. A hologram as defined by this manuscript is a three dimensional sound and light projection. Everything around us is part of the hologram — the street on which we live, our mother and father, our pets, everything.

Hologram

The holographic reality has been explored extensively by other researchers and writers, most notably in The Holographic Universe: The Revolutionary Theory of Reality by Michael Talbot. It's an excellent read. The pullout quote from The New York Times review sums it up perfectly.

In The Holographic Universe, Michael Talbot argues nothing less than that the universe is itself one giant hologram. Mr. Talbot thus explains out-of-body experiences, quantum-theory problems, the paranormal, and other unsolved riddles of brain and body.

The concept of a hologram is daunting for people. It strikes at the very concept of reality. If this is a hologram then what's real? The answer is a paradox. Our reality is simultaneously real and unreal. It depends on us. It's not surprising the hologram is trending now as a social concept. It's everywhere. Talbot seems to be at the forefront of it. His tome was published in 1991. By the end of the nineties it was everywhere. We call it the matrix now, thanks to a couple brothers, the Wachowskis, who are now sisters, the result of gender reassignment, which they both elected to undergo.

The Wachowskis wrote and directed The Matrix, the phenomenally successful 1997 film, starring Keanu Reeves. Talbot may be the first secular source to address the topic of a projected reality, but the Wachowskis have owned it since their cinematic trilogy. The Wachowskis inspired an entire sub-genre of scientific and conspiratorial inquiry, with everyone wondering — do we really live in a matrix? Merriam Webster defines matrix in multiple ways, due to the various ways in which the word is used and the various fields of science that employ it, but the primary definition is as follows.

something within or from which something else originates, develops, or takes form

The idea that our earthbound reality is a matrix has been around for millennia. A synonym is Maya from the Buddhist and Hindu teachings. The American Heritage Dictionary of the English Language defines it as follows.

In Hinduism, Buddhism, and certain other East Asian religions, the transitory, manifold appearance of the sensible world, which obscures the undifferentiated spiritual reality from which it originates; the illusory appearance of the sensible world. The power of a god or demon to transform a concept into an element of the sensible world. In Hindu mythology: Illusion or deceptive appearance.

When the Buddhists and the Hindus use the word Maya they mean illusion. The world we perceive through our senses is a complete and total illusion. It doesn't make sense, though, does it? We eat and the food is real, tangible, tactile, and flavored. We don't drive an imaginary car to the hardware store. Try telling your creditors you've deemed your mortgage payments an illusion. See how long you retain your home.

Hologram

We are confronted with the real and the unreal at the same time. It's a paradox, which is something that is both real and unreal at the same time, a cohesive contradiction.

It's important then that we be clear in our text what is meant by hologram. It's the assertion of this text that reality is a projection from another dimension or dimensions. The projection from the other dimensions produces the relatively consistent rule set which provides the appearance of a reality, but it's paper thin. The rule set is broken all the time, but nobody is broadcasting it, so we don't hear about it. The rule set is broken in scientific communities, mystical communities, magical communities, native communities, and many more. What happens when we break the rule set? Like the ring keeper in Tolkien's Lord of the Rings, we keep it secret, we keep it safe. Those we tell are spoken to in whisper, as if evidence of our own uncertainty, a footnote to our grappling with the paradox.

Most mystery schools, secret societies, brotherhoods, magical and ritual communities exist in some version of this secret. Why? Do they not want to let the world know? It's a combination of factors, but, chief among them, is the understanding that without the ability to take the person you're telling the secret to out of the rule set as well, they are not going to believe it. This is the hologram we live within, a breakable rule set enforced as absolute by those who have not broken the rule set.

Sound and Light

The chief characteristic of our hologram is sound and light. Light is a boundary for time in our world. When we look up at the stars we see the past in the present. The image of the star is dated by the time it took for the light to reach our eyes. Some stars we see in their distant past, but, for us, it's the present. We look up and there it is. Never once do we consider we are seeing the past, but we are.

It's important to understand the lesson of the visiting starlight. It's important because it breaks the rule set. The rule set says that only the present moment is real. The past is memory and the future is speculation, both of which take place in our thoughts, in our heads, ergo, not a part of the object reality. The starlight we see in the present is from the past.

The physical light we see, both from the stars and our own sun, follows the rule set of this three dimensional reality. It cannot exceed the allotted speed of light, which is 299,792 kilometers per second, or, 186,282 miles per second. It's pretty fast. At that speed we could circumscribe the earth seven and a half times in one second.

There are so many creation stories. The garden of Eden and the rather horrid unfolding of Genesis, the incredible tales of the turtle universe from the Iroquois Confederacy in Canada, or the novel, post-modern school room of soul narrative the new age favors. They're all versions of the same story. One of the more recent — only five hundred years ago — is the Anurag Sagar, which translates to The Ocean of Love — orated by an illiterate weaver named Kabir Sahib, a satguru, which means true teacher, of his time. He ups the game big time. He introduces a creation story where God willed everything into existence with sixteen shabdās — sound currents — that animate all the dimensions and sub-dimensions that weave reality together. It's an incredibly precise addition to creation mythologies, and certainly the forebearer of all notions of at least a great many of our dimensions being simulations of sorts. The sound can be heard and the light can be seen in meditation. Kabir was the first to explicitly speak about it in a religious text, however, it's been part of the secret teachings of many contemplative spiritual paths, reserved for the true devotees. It's a phenomena based spiritual teaching. It separates itself immediately from all others and becomes the first scientific exploration of consciousness, with the sound and light acting as a tow line to draw the contemplative closer to source.

Hologram

What has evolved in popular culture is an impotent hologram, a matrix created by a diabolical force, a mechanistic force. This is the Free Masonic version of the absent god, the universe run by automation. Nothing could be further from the truth. Everything in existence is touched by the prime creator. It's here we flip the narrative. Yes it is a hologram. Yes it is contained in sound and light frequencies apprehendable by the body, the DNA skinsuit — which is all it really is — but that sound and light is generated by the prime creator. It has a unique color and sound on each dimension. It is, in fact, a divine hologram. The sixteen shabdās originate from a place that itself has no sound, but is not silent, and no light, but is not dark, the final riddle from the illiterate weaver, Kabir Sahib.

It's a hologram because it is light projected into a three dimensional manifestation. It's divine because the light comes from the prime creator, God. When we use the word hologram we are the victim of something. Nothing could be further from the truth, unless we can victimize ourselves, which we can and we do, because drama needs tension, and tension is stress, and volunteering for stress by manufactured tension is masochistic. By calling it a hologram, we make an object of our reality, something acting against us, a god, a devil, an angel, a demon, anything but ourselves. This is why we objectify our reality. This is why we call it a simulation, a matrix, a hologram. It's a lack of consciousness, a failure to attribute the divine to the light, and a stone deaf ear to the word, which is the sound which is the light, sustaining all the worlds in this sound and light manifestation. It's funny, because when you clue into it; it's everywhere.

She should have died hereafter.

There would have been a time for such a word.

Tomorrow, and tomorrow, and tomorrow

Creeps in this petty pace from day to day

To the last syllable of recorded time.

And all our yesterdays have lighted fools

The way to dusty death. Out, out, brief candle.

Hologram

Life's but a walking shadow, a poor player
That struts and frets his hour upon the stage,
And then is heard no more. It is a tale
Told by an idiot, full of sound and fury,
Signifying nothing.

Macbeth

William Shakespeare

Why would the end of time be marked and measured by syllables? Because it's all sound, and light is a form of sound. This is, of course, why we have so much tonal prayer and trance, whether it be Sufi dervishes spinning to an intoxicating Arabic song-like prayer, heavy on chanting, the persistence of mantra in yoga and meditation, long vowel sounds drawn out on the breath, or the deep throat singing of the Mongols, which, they say, allows them to speak to their ancestors, and Gregorian chanting in the Christian tradition. It's all about the sounds.

Global Narrative

The global narrative is the agreed upon reality. Some spiritual paths call it social consciousness. Human beings have a tremendous need for social interaction. We are social beings. We have families, communities, nations, religions, and a host of other binding agents. We go from one to many, and when we do our thinking changes. We conform, do we not? Think of high school. Remember how important every detail of our appearance was. Remember how easy it was for predatory companies to market against that fear of being outside, to sell us denim pants, but not just any denim. They had to be the exact style that was in fashion, and so it went for everything — hair, teeth, shoes, and friends. All of our worth was in the group. There are sub-narratives for race, gender, earning income, and just about anything else we can think of. The need to belong never goes away.

There is a deeper meaning to global narrative, to social consciousness, a far more sinister meaning. The global narrative is the boundary of what we can accept as reality. This is maintained by religious leaders, science, government, medicine, academe, and just about anything else that is institutional. This is the true control narrative. When someone comes along and they speak outside this global narrative they get censured at first. If that doesn't work they lose their job. If what they're saying is self-supporting, meaning it can provide the income lost upon job termination, then the discordant human being is at risk of death or extreme censure like incarceration.

Hologram

Galileo is a classic example. He presented his astronomy to the world. It contradicted the Vatican, even at a time when Copernicus was openly discussed, and, contrary to contemporary belief, the Catholic Church had commenced a vigorous support campaign for science some years earlier, but, nonetheless, something about Galileo conflicted much more severely with the church. Perhaps it was just the time, the age. The church had reached its peak of corruption at the time of Galileo.

The point here is that the global narrative, the control narrative, is maintained by the dominant institutions of the day. These institutions did not evolve naturally. There are unknown directors and producers crafting the actors in the institutions. This is not to say there are not people in the institutions who are true believers. There are, however, at the top there is commiseration with the unknown directors and producers. It was true at the time of Galileo, and it is true today.

The contemporary global narrative began three hundred years ago, at the dawn of industrialization. It occurred when electricity and engines were incorporated by a society not grounded in electricity. Science had to adapt concepts to fit the circumstance, and religion and spirituality had to adapt to the new reality. Electromagnetism had been known about for some time within hermetic orders of alchemists, essentially secret societies of their time. It was the beginning of a society that would build around internal combustion engines started by electricity. This moved to power plants, electrical grid work across the planet, and the reorganization of the various belief systems around this. It was a rapid change after centuries of relative consistency, and it's been this way ever since, rapid change. On the consciousness level we went from semi-literacy in the multidimensional reality to a closed rational objectivity. The new norm was if you can't prove it then it's not real. In some ways this was good. It cleaned out a lot of stale spirituality and superstition, but it was a classic baby with the bathwater situation. Premodern societies, which included the recently discovered new world of America and its native population. The native population was slated for destruction. The actors in Europe, the Pope, the monarchies, and some of the secret societies knew the native population was in America. They were a bad example of autonomy and freedom that had to be destroyed. The long term plan had already been formed.

They needed to get people into cities as slave labor for industrial production lines. The slaves created and empowered the collective belief system. People lived in their own bubbles of reality prior to this urban amalgamation. They had space. Communities lived a few hundred kilometers apart. They had their own unique narratives maintained by the chief, sheriff, or community council. Secret societies proliferated so people could have their own narrative among followers and believers.

Hologram

The writers of the global narrative understood they needed to inspire awe, and they knew they could do it with trains, automobiles, electricity, indoor plumbing, hot and cold water, refrigeration, and telephones. By the nineteen twenties people were living in wooden, stone, or brick houses that needed heating. In a century and a quarter electricity was in homes. People no longer needed whale fat for candles and oil. Understand how monumental this was — ninety percent of the world was lit by whale fat for millennia. The narrative had to be updated, revised, and maintained from one generation to the next to suppress anything that wasn't fitting into the official story. This touches almost every science, but, by way of example, let's use anthropology and the hiding of giant's skulls and bones. Yes, giants were on the earth. The enforcement of the lies has been an ongoing control policy right up till today. We have been led to this bottleneck, this opportunity.

Story

We live in a reality defined by experience. We tell stories. They have a beginning, a middle, and an end. We chronicle our stories. The first person who ever took pen to paper did so in fear, and this is why human beings are enmeshed in stories. We love the drama. We love to create it, and we love to consume it. Drama is tension. Human beings say they want peace, but it's kind of a scam when you're honest. If we wanted peace we wouldn't create tension in our lives, but without the tension we can't live the drama. It's best just to be honest. If you lie about it you're more susceptible to programming, which proliferates the world, hundreds of broadcast networks and movie studios all over the world — Hollywood, Bollywood, Hong Kong, Shanghai, the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation, British Broadcasting Corporation, and too many more to list — all servicing humanity's insatiable appetite for programming, which is drama for the most part, which, as we have clearly established, is tension. Yet, if you walk up to any human being and ask them if they prefer peace to tension they will tell you they prefer peace. Isn't that strange?

It really isn't that strange when you understand what's going on down here. On the spiral ladder of our deoxyribonucleic acid — DNA by its affectionate abbreviation — we hold an evolving marker of our place in time-space which also represents our level of consciousness. This marker is the sum of our experience — where experience is movement in time-space, and the drama, the tension, we create — and represents but a faction of our greater soul, and the experiences we have assimilated as a soul faction.

Hologram

This marker is directly aligned with our level of responsibility because our level of consciousness is always equal to our level of responsibility. They are in a symbiotic relationship, consciousness and responsibility. DNA is in essence coordinates to where we fit in space-time, or, to stay with our narrative, how we've been written into the story. Our circumstance is our DNA, which is our story, which is our tension, which is our drama, which we wrote and act out ourselves, forgetting the author sleeps in our unconscious.

We have the story, creation, and we have the author, God and soul as a fractal of God, or the prime creator, as God is so anthropomorphically programmed into human consciousness as a being like us — two arms and legs, two eyes and ears, bipedal, and fond of long white beards — and we have the actor, soul as well, incarnate — sheathed really — in this body, borrowed from air, earth, water, fire, and ether.

The travail of the soul is to unlock levels of consciousness. It is a travail because we must suffer for it. New consciousness permits us to embody new experiences, to write, direct, and star in a more expanded story.

We are not actuality creating anything in time. We are traversing it and enjoining an experience with it. We are seedlings in a cosmic garden, passing through experiences expressed in a specific form of life, and then, when sentience is achieved alongside language and culture, we go through any number of human expressions until we master the tool, the hu man form, a rather extraordinary instrument, as maligned as it has become in the First World, the newer, better hu man that seems just around the corner, the trans hu man, the super man made from man, Nietzsche's bastard let loose upon the world — nonetheless, a rather extraordinary instrument, the hu man form. We are inside a sound and light reality, one of many, and we traverse and enjoin experience with it, unaware we're inside it, until, by epiphany, the nature of the system reveals itself in form. The story was written before we lived it, even though it seemed like it was really happening for the longest of times. We are living the mapped out keys of the experiences. Every choice, path, and set of functions, every different type of life has been made available to us so we can embody the experience, mapped like a script, written into what we perceive to be a timeline, a bloodline, a clan, a tribe, a culture, a people, a place, a planet — stories within stories, managed by cosmic editors and keepers of time, all under a prime creator, an amorphous but fully conscious presence in everything we call life, unconditionally offering the experiences as an expression of its love. You believe as much already if you follow a prophetic religion. The prophets tell of a story already written.

Do not diminish our position as a living and sentient being. You are creating within this world. Our free will choices unfold the story. As the story unfolds, you receive the blessings of the particular experience. Never feel overwhelmed or helpless. We are truly connected to the outcome of our unique choices. As we get further into this journey, we realize we're time traveling beings by nature. In no way is this experience linear. We are responsible for our creations forwards and backwards in time, and we can make alterations as we see fit — when our consciousness is so unfolded — by connecting to past and future versions of ourselves.

Hologram

Eternity is in the present moment, mediated through attention and awareness, by perception and perspective, until we leave the celestial sphere, then, a new swath of perception opens. The outer frequency of this hologram unfolds into more and bigger holograms. This goes all the way up the scale of our awareness. Our perception allows us a greater, 360 ° view. Suddenly perspective has no direction, no horizon, no fade to black. It's everywhere, operating at a higher law of nature, but natural nonetheless. We are unentangled.

Free Will

We can understand the importance of individual awakening in this time of collective narrative dominance. The individual needs to dismantle the global narrative. This is underway in great measure now. This is why the collective is fracturing, polarized to radically disparate camps, each with belief systems that leave only insanity as the explanation for the other side. The desire to change the global narrative is the last part of the zealot rebel within us who wants to shake everyone awake, even, unfortunately for the zealots, the ones who aren't ready. We can't force people to have an experience for which they're not ready. This is an individual awakening journey, one at a time, in the time the individual needs. Forcing it violates the free will contract.

We are photonic light beings animated by a non-localized soul which powers the body. We have consciousness in the body which perceives this holographic reality in light and memories within shared reality rules. We are free willed, encoded beings of light, functioning in many different worlds simultaneously. Everything is synchronistic with the celestial minds holding space for us. This I am being manifested in this density is mutually co-creating with our higher self, and we are the boots on the ground in a localized space time event. Our memories are stored in light, and we share those memories within this hologram of light and sovereign space of power. The heart is the first organ that develops in the mother's womb, and it is from this heart space we learn to redefine our reality rules.

Hologram

We can freely change the plans we had pre-birth. Everything is based off the perspective of the observer. Ten years ago, the esoteric side in the global narrative tried to predict our future based on the data they'd collected on us. A decade later and they can barely predict ten to fifteen days ahead. Governments are more transparent now. A veil has been lifted. They are not incompetent. They are not well intentioned but poor at execution. They are vile, diametrically opposite their projected personas. How did we miss that? As a free willed being of choice we can change the bubble of reality we live in. We can now start seeing the duality we had tacitly consented to before. This is not a global awakening. It's an individual journey to exit the heavily militarized factions that beleaguer our knowingness and hinder our birth right of being a free willed celestial beings. The future rests in people who get back to a natural way of living. Stop waiting for them to give us something. We can walk away from the cities any time. It just takes the courage to live sovereign.

Consciousness expresses itself through the many choices we make. It has an unconscious state too. Our bodies have zeros and ones created as binary numbers for knowing and not knowing — instinct. It stays in place until we can decode the information around us. Consciousness is self-regulating. It presents choice equal to the level of responsibility, which is a measure of the consciousness, as awareness and responsibility are in a symbiotic relationship, each nurturing and growing the other. We live stories we choose to consecrate life and its purpose, growth of consciousness. Many people try to jump ahead and be responsible for things they're not even aware of yet. This is a mistake. Make the decisions that are yours to make for the expansion of your awareness. Choice is foundational to consciousness.

Each person must ask themselves what the mechanics are behind their choices. Which choices created a timeline of choices. Each choice and sub-choice within a set of choice points creates a subconscious map of adherence of choices which helps define our reality. This reality is all of our choice points combined into the ever present now.

We give form to consciousness — words, metaphors, concepts, images, architecture — which eventually manifests in reality. Our thought constructs create perceptions which assist people to see all potentials. The universe has lifeforms existing in one and two dimensions and densities which are harvested by wisdom, love, and inspiration. They are expressed in this three dimensional reality for experience in the fourth dimension and beyond. We continuously expand and add to the divine hologram through free willed creation. This is our co-creator role. Every era of light we go through advances souls to other universes and solar systems when they graduate. We move from one divine hologram to another, each with a different learning level. This has been perfected on planet earth, which is a genetic farm outside of the divine intent, a genetic farm created for commercial not creational purposes. Earth is a seventy-five percent old soul community, with a steady influx of twenty-five percent of new souls. The ratio has been in existence for an extremely long period of time. There are always new souls coming in from the different galactic life form nurseries. They get a light body, and they extend their first set of contracts to a planet and a solar system, which determines the field of consciousness at which they start. Do they start in the sea of consciousness or the ocean of awareness.

Hologram

What would be the first life experience — living in a tunnel in South America circa two million years ago, praying to a false god. This process is being replicated on millions of worlds for millions of different life forms. This is the nature of consciousness. With evolution come questions — rights, duties, responsibilities — to focus our intention on direct manifestations, to add to the holographic experiences. Right now there are different levels of background consciousness around us — the house you live in has its own relative consciousness from the building material, the wood, the concrete, the people that invested their consciousness in building it, the trees that surround it, the piece of land you're on, the micro-organisms, squirrels, cats, and dogs — all of which has a conscious energy field with its specific spiritual contracts, guides, and guardians. It's all an apparatus to allow ascension and descension through the different individual layers of the divine hologram. This animated matter we are entangling with is part of the fabric of the hologram, linked and dynamically transformed through the interaction between humans and microorganisms.

Consciousness is intrinsically spiritual. Part of spirituality is to acknowledge and become aware of other consciousness surrounding, interacting, and sharing with us. You can be alone in the house and still have that experience of consciousness sharing and entangling. You're never truly alone. DNA can be its own evolutionary impulse which influences consciousness when experiencing stagnation. A master waveform operates at a much longer length of time. Within that waveform are all the individual sub-carriers — entangled observers — of that era, that light, that time. The celestial mind is operating on a much longer and expansive view of time and timelessness.

Entangled and Unentangled

As we move past a subject, part of our brain continues to color in the past event, as if it were a live memory, until we completely disentangle from the subject. We do it all the time, so much we don't even notice we're doing it. We go to a party. We have a good time. We synchronize with the moment. Upon leaving, the energy of the party persists in us with a kind of half-life — still thinking and feeling the fun we had at the party and coloring the memory until our consciousness disentangles from the energetic imprint.

We want to stay with high frequency experiences, but we get disconnected — how and why? Sleep can disconnect us. An argument with a significant other can alter our frequency, but, even a few hours after the argument, it was still a fun party. Think of a kite and the wind that suddenly reconnects to the energy. Having a jarring accident could put a sudden end to a high frequency. Then, the next month's party at the same place has us coloring the experience before we even get there. We send our precognitive workforce there to experience it prior to the actual event.

Our state of perception influences us. When we think back on the party we are in the implicate, enfolded order, as opposed to being at the party, where we are in the explicate, unfolded order. The state of perception — implicate or explicate — determines how we perceive the physics of the environment. The physics of the environment, as well as the observer's perception, changes as the observer moves between explicate to implicate order. The state of perception equals perspective. The perspective of the explicate order — when we are at the party — is different than the perspective of the implicate, the memory. No matter if we are spiritual, atheistic, or anything else, it's all quantum mechanics expressed in different words.

The entangled observer uses a deeper information process, while, with the unentangled observer, the information is in full flow, and there is no need to process it — it's already in their knowing. When we have infinite love co-creating with us, we must truly choose to be the disentangled observer. Go into your heart space. Create that vision in your mind and engage with the sacred, neutral observer, knowing information cannot change us unless we agree to it. Based on how the I am now is understood and processed, it will either expand or contract your knowing. By making that sovereign choice to be the disentangled observer of the self means we get the fullest versions of ourselves in the here and now. You are the apex of your own hierarchical order. Say that in your mental heart space.

I am the apex of my own hierarchical order, and no other hierarchical system has control and domination within me.

The entangled observer, going through the process of perception and perspective, is refining the thought structures. Every time we have an aha moment we go from implicate to explicate. You can be an implicate unentangled observer and be in the explicate observation simultaneously, but entanglement is a deeper choice to enter into it.

In this reality there are no real truths and facts because every time we go from implicate to explicate and back the memory has changed. This is what shatters space-time as the foundation of everything and creates plasticity of reality. Consciousness does not adhere to space-time per the rules of Newtonian physics. Why would it? Consciousness is not of matter, but it can exist within and experience matter. Thoughts and memories, even as part of the implicate and explicate order, are a chemical frequency in nature. There comes a point in light frequencies where we bypass the chemical frequency in nature, and we operate in a higher dimension where space and time are no longer relevant. Space-time is dependent on how the implicate and explicate order goes to chemical and light memory storage long term. This is when the DNA instrument of experience can have a 360 ° view of itself. Spiritual contracts can become part of the implicate and explicate order. This creates the time stamp on the linear side of the life form, or, the DNA instrument of experience. It also creates the adherence to the global narrative. The past, present, and future are irrelevant based off perception, but it is perception that gives it relevancy in the moment when the chemical memory becomes a light memory or in the case of high frequency, when we bypass chemical memories to create an experience. The status of entanglement determines the outcome. Quantum physics works on the premise that everything is entangled. It places all significance on the observer without looking at the observer status of entanglement.

An unentangled observer may be implicate and explicate at the same time. You don't have to have an explicate explanation as a prerequisite to the implicate order. Every time the quantum field is accessed and observed, the access and observation creates a marker point in time and no-time that the implicate and explicate order is no longer defined separately but viewed simultaneously. You can call back all marker points in time to which you are a fixed point in space-time for spiritual resolution.

When you become a fixed moment in space-time all of your simultaneously existing selves can tune into your finite point in time. Those particular marker points in time could be many eras of light apart, or they could represent a marker point in an era of light in which you became an apex of your DNA lineage of registry. You could liken it to puberty — that would be a marker point in time. The era of innocence ends. The adult with miles to go before it sleeps, and promises to keep, to borrow from Robert Frost, emerges. It's a marker point in time, because a greater form of time stamping is created. Sound is a form of light. Light makes up memories. Memories can be changed. Yes — memories can change. We can change our memories. We can change our past. This is the power given to every one of us, but few access it it a lifetime. It's just another forgotten part of the grand being we call soul.

Hologram

The study of mnemonics is incorrect. The scientists understand the chemical part of memory, but not the light part. Past, present, or future memories are all frequencies of light. When we watch a video it is a slice of time. When we create a document, or read out loud with power, these are slices of time — we gather and form intent and imprint in us that has borders and boundaries to not allow beings of forced evolution into your frequency. It enforces the borders and boundaries saying:

I am a match for global dreamtime awakening; I am a signature frequency match for my own dreaming self; I am a match for my own healing and mastery; I am a match for union and communion; I am not a match for hate and war; I am not a signature frequency match for bad relationships in my life.

This is what these revocations are for and if you read them from the heart, from a place of power, expanding the wholeness that is you, bringing the fullness of your sacred discipline, your sacred genius to mean what you say. Read them out loud as often as you can. Once you have found the power in your voice, record them. Listen is a deep meditative state. Hear your own version of power. Present your own signature frequency to that past incarnation of you and raise that frequency, that emanation of light, through sacred discipline and choice. These are choice points, markers in time. They project to a future version of yourself who may not be in that power or ready to get to the next level.

Introduce yourself to yourself with this method and you begin to learn you are your greatest teacher, you are a signature frequency match for what you focus on. You are a match for great change when it has potent concepts behind it that directly connect to you. By way of these tools, powerfully applied in the physical present moment, we make a conscious choice to be the unentangled observer, to interpret more data and data sets at a superluminal thinking level, enforcing our sovereignty as divine co-creative celestial beings of the now.

The unentangled observer is not attached to information or its flow. Until we become the unentangled observer, we impact on situations purely through observation. We create another neutral observer external to us after this. We create it inside the divine hologram. We raise our light frequency to create that anima part, reaching towards the celestial medium journey, increasing our frequency until we are the celestial medium. This hasn't manifested in the human information field yet. Nobody in science or spirituality is talking about it.

One might very easily have questions about judgment here. How do you participate in family, community, economy, government, and world affairs as an unentangled observer? Suspend judgment. Judgment is an attachment to this divine hologram we are born into. It's also a petition for experience. This is our unconscious understanding of irony. In order to detach we need to practice the unentangled observer. We can achieve a non-judgmental state, non-competition, equal co-creation, with non-hierarchical order. It is our natural state.

Judgment is a very unique perspective. There are certain high states of awareness that use judgment. Judgment is an ongoing challenge all consciousness is going through. Making something absolute is necessary to solidify concepts, but it can prevent greater states of awareness. Judgment is required to materialize concepts from the sea of awareness. This is another way of looking at materialism. It's not all just cash and cupidity. There are certain highly aware beings who are very judgmental. They've gone so far into concepts of good or bad it's their way or no way.

An unentangled observer can observe the quantum field without having an effect on it. It happens all the time. Observers are born into human form, sent into this world to create a record of it they then take back to where they came from. They do not interfere with the unfoldment of circumstance here. If they did, they would be entangled. There are numerous observers and collectives of observers that we might call off-world, able to observe us nonetheless. They are not influencing us, but they have a perception of us based on the observed data that is put back into their form of experience — their body, if you will. like the human form for us — or what we can call, however clinical, the DNA instrument. The experience is taken in as a flow, then perceived after the time of observation. This allows them to remain unentangled observers because they are two degrees of separation from the original observance. The DNA does not influence the observation because of the two degrees of observation from the observed. It is our birth right and legacy as human beings to do that too. The more degrees of separation the easier it is to become a quantum observer. As we unentangle ourselves from everything that will give us the choice to perceive from a place of non-definition. DNA has a light frequency in it beyond our understanding. Our consciousness can engage the unseen world and by using mystical linguistics our knowing can expand. As unentangled observer, no charge, no polarity can influence us. You have the unlimited point of view, in sacred neutrality where all information flows as an experience in expansion of your knowing. This is when the mystical becomes the norm.

Precognition and Postcognition

Several seconds before we consciously make a decision its outcome can be predicted from unconscious activity in the brain. The conscious energy field is connected to our precognitive workforce, which is part of our implicate and explicate order. When we consciously entangle with that workforce, those few seconds become infinite. One second in the quantum world is infinite, yet you have several seconds in the physical world to allow the precognitive workforce, that has an educated and practiced intention behind it, to align natural synchronicities and pattern recognition to create a much more solidified effect in the entangled and unentangled processes. The I am precognitive workforce is a term covering all versions of yourself simultaneously existing in time and non-time and that have earned, learned, and re-learned the rights of awareness. As a spiritually aware and natural co-creative evolutionary being, existing in all time-space equations and beyond, we are assisted by a masterful pre and post cognitive workforce, as our birthright and legacy.

In the case of dementia, old age for example, where the earliest memories become the most lucid and immediate, and short-term memory becomes more difficult, there's a breakdown of chemical memory association in the file tree. This is where the skull cap — the top of the crown — tells the spirit where all the files are stored inside the body. The chemical memories are corrupting the file tree because the brain itself has broken down through lesions. Cellular pathways don't have energy to support the brain. There is a breakdown in the genetic journey and part of the life and death contract. Significant distorted memory just before death triggers a markedly different form of life review. Reverting back to younger versions of the self is a co-existence in time through bilocation. It skews the light memories. The light body doesn't identify to a single point of time anymore. This is the corruption of the chemical memory, the time stamping. This disease can be contracted by the fetus in the womb or by DNA design and plan. There are certain DNA skinsuits with a prevalent experience in them. The fetus knows that before it goes into the DNA form for the experience. There is much we can do to prevent this, but we don't have the proper gut gnome from a very young age to support brain health. Then there is the mental, spiritual, physical drama and trauma that attacks the brain even more. The life journey can be cut radically short by the manipulation that was done to the DNA about 35,000 years ago when the brainstem was manipulated. The motor cortex functions were assigned an earlier ending date than the actual extended life process. Many of us could live two to three hundred years if we had proper trauma resolution so as not to burn out the neurological pathways. Optimal gut health is a remedy to avoid the plaque build up which causes dementia. It is all about the volume of individuals who are part of the ocean of awareness choosing to experience a law as a fundamental value of experience from one era of light to the next. Unentangled observers do not have to abide by universal laws. That is the whole point of entering that state of neutral observation.

Hologram

Universal laws come down to egg and sperm technology or other birthing processes that generate lineages differently. The birthing technologies determine how the universal laws are used, and every birthing technology has different quantum laws. The sperm, seed, egg technology allows access to the infinite blueprint or the planning stage. Sexuality and prayer are built into our DNA. Our DNA is in sympathetic creation with the natural order here. This reality gives us coherent resonance with geometric holograms of information to decode, process, and use to our advantage. The journey into the greater awareness is understanding how to use our energy as a conscious being of choice. We start in this bliss state where the infinite code is in the celestial mediumship. The celestial medium steps down into the fetus and goes through the laws of forgetting so it doesn't have access to its infinite sight. It then is a part of this hologram as a non-infinite being who is on the journey to celestial mediumship again. We are forever trying to get back to that place of bliss and joy. All the teachings since the dawn of spirituality have a bliss teaching. It is our birthright. Inside the fetus in the womb state is the non-locality teaching. We are both locality and non-locality. What makes us different from the fetus are the memories we have stored in light. Our blueprint as a fetus has the infinite set of memories and potentials we've created. The incarnational process allows us to experience all forms of life on the planet. We go through all the forms of life. This is the mastery path in its purest form. The I am data unpacks and decodes itself through its eras of incarnation. We add the chemical memories to enforce linear time so spiritual contracts can come to fruition.

There are beings who no longer use any form of birthing technology — pure unentangled quantum observers. They can use any seed and egg technology to generate different forms of I am technology. This is how the fifteen multidimensional beings were abusing the universal laws. They knew they could splinter themselves into thousands of I am experiences and remain unentangled observers by various degrees of separation. They were wholly unentangled and conscious energy beings using the laws of incarnation through technology. In the ancient past cloning technology was easy to use. They could incarnate into a dog, a rabbit, a cat, anything, really, and remain the unentangled observer. The DNA instrument determines the richness of the experience for the unentangled observer.

Transmigration is the spiritual term for leaving the human form for a lower form in the incarnational pattern. It's usually presented as a punishment or admonishment to better behavior, but, after performing war contracts in an incarnation, a cat incarnation disconnects the being from the implicate order of repetitive karma and allows it to have other lifetimes of incarnation separate of the karma created in the war. By leaving the implicate and explicate order and becoming a completely unentangled observer in the natural food chain — a separate karmic interaction — beings of the past created karmic debt that was put onto lineages. The debt was no longer connected to the being but to their lineage. That's how lineage based debt was created. It's an insight into the sins of the father being upon the sons doctrine in the Abrahamic scriptures. There are beings who used the unentangled observer technology to escape karma. They escaped their karmic responsibility by leaving karma's chain of custody and scapegoating their own future generations.

Hologram

In the ocean of awareness — the living algorithm of life — all data is conscious. We become the living algorithm of life when we are in a DNA skinsuit that is regularly achieving near super or superluminal thinking. The algorithm is a fundamental part of the I AM technology unfolding as you grow older and become more experienced running the DNA skinsuit at its higher functionalities. When you act as the living algorithm of life within superluminal thinking, you create a signature frequency where others can palpably sense the meaning of your delivery. Being fixed and not fixed in time. In this refined state of being, we enter the energy frequency that is the living algorithm of life. We stay grounded in the body and explain things in the twenty-six letter encoded English alphabet. We all do it. Most won't realize when they do it. Often clarity comes in dream space because the mind is out of the way. The celestial medium of peace is functioning in many scores of dreamworlds, with many of the pre and post cognitive workforces creating the language of masterful manifestations through visions. The data, as part of the wave form, works as the precognitive workforce to manipulate how it will be perceived at its endpoint in space-time. The ocean of awareness is the technical source point for the flow of data that may or may not generate into the sea of consciousness, an observable time-space reality. It allows the data to flow to the sea of consciousness in a fixed time-space narrative which then allows consciousness to observe it. Consciousness in the sea of consciousness can both be entangled and unentangled, manifested and non-manifested in time. In the sea of consciousness, quantum physics becomes confusing. We are still in the ocean of awareness. Part of us might still consciously entangle with the ocean of awareness as a greater observer as space-time narrative. This is how the angelic forces work. If we go back thousands of eras of light, when the universe was not as big as it is now, with perhaps 200 galaxies in it, the ocean of awareness was a very small network. In order to know itself through a sea of consciousness, it generated a seventh dimensional galactic seed planet — earth — a place where the ocean of awareness could directly manifest, change, and adjust the laws of quantum physics through entangled and unentangled observers. It created matter based lifeforms on mass scales to populate new galaxies, part of the greater exploration of where light can go into the void of experiences. Lifeforms went to the ocean of awareness to find meaning and to create agendas in the sea of consciousness. Source can be observed as a hologram through the egg and sperm creation. All of the information is already there to form new parts of the hologram through new life experience.

Hologram

Data is a finished algorithm. An ongoing algorithm is the conscious processing power CPU of the chemical memory being made into light memory. In the journey of becoming a solidified chemical and light memory it becomes data. The observer ends the journey of processing the perception and turns it into a perspective before it moves on to the next subject matter. We know $1+1=2$, but when you're a little kid trying to figure out math the brain slows down. Once you have the answer that ends the process. Having an affirmative answer it then becomes a solidified DNA memory in light — transcendence — accessible through knowingness, easily accessible to your awareness during pattern recognition. There are times where the information is at the tip of your tongue but you can't get it until the time you stop thinking about it. The pattern recognition can trigger the memory from before.

Technology

There is a lot of past technology resurfacing in the field of consciousness. Remote viewing is an example. This is when the consciousness is trained to go somewhere and see and hear. The body is localized but the I am goes somewhere else in space or space-time. You might know this from films like The Men Who Stare at Goats. They mocked it in the film, but in real life it has been used by military and intelligence quite effectively. It precedes this modern utility, of course, and has been a part of human activities for quite some time, from tribal shaman to ancient priest classes in bygone times. It has its roots in Lemuria, the ancient civilization that existed alongside Atlantis. They pioneered the technology of the unentangled observer, a specialty within Lemurian DNA combined with the ancient Lemurian city technology of deep observance, like psychic telescopes, so they could remotely view anyone in the multiple universes as unentangled observers. When they became very practiced at the unentangled observer, it became a part of their DNA and they passed it on in lineages, like having an invisible cloak. That DNA became commercialized in the galactic genetics market — the primary exchange in the galaxy and the universes, by the way — to species who were spiritually, physically, and emotionally not ready for it, but they procured the DNA anyways, bought or stolen. This created the DNA wars and it's why DNA farming exists today. The original gene for the unentangled observer was added to other species through genetic mixing.

The unentangled observer technology was a DNA experience that could be traded with lineages and species compatible with it. It came with a price. Some species lost their sex organs and were forced to clone to reproduce. It depended on the level of density of the species that imported the genetics of the unentangled observer. The natural and supernatural are the same thing. The preternatural is the result of gross violations to the natural and supernatural law. This is a self-governed reality. The divine hologram is perfect. It is the arrogance of sentient beings that produces miscreants, and miscreants are the doorway to the preternatural.

Hologram

An unentangled observer doesn't require a body. An unentangled observer is an experience which becomes a DNA memory. The DNA memory can be extracted from a lineage and inserted into another. The new lineage inherits the aspect and experience. Epigenetics is the real galactic mercantilism. The original species to get unentangled observer DNA lost their I am sovereignty. It was a long process, as all things related to genetics are. They left their home worlds and entered the void between galaxies and universes and became the stalkers of the void. Out there, at the edges of nothingness, no longer attached to any time space localities, they could send back the remains of their consciousness to observe their home worlds through many points of view. They collected DNA memories and data of observation then returned from the void space. As they advanced in this process, they could remain in the void space, and they could create and send data streams directly to a form of DNA technology that absorbed the live stream data of an unentangled observer. That's how they first gained the capacity to be unentangled observers. After that, they started trading the DNA to other species.

A pure quantum observer doesn't need a body and is not predictable to others. Many beings have reached the level of awareness at which they don't need a body to have an experience. There exist hollow earth beings living in the space between atoms by unentangled observer genetics. They spread agendas throughout implicate order time. This is why DNA farming is so unique. These wholly unentangled, agenda-driven observers can create a light body within the various implicate orders to transfer data back to them through two or three or more degrees of separation. They themselves remain unentangled, and difficult to nearly impossible to observe, all the while, spreading their agenda through many frequencies of time . This is abuse of the quantum laws. Let's say there are unentangled quantum observer light bodies in 1330 in Italy and it is 2021 now. There are many degrees of separation between them and us. Every generation is a separation of density. This allows any generation to impact on the past. The past is manipulable. Any changes immediately alter a potential future. This is why timeline manipulation is so easy to do. DNA farming is manipulating how memories are light-stored in the past, and how they are passed on to our teachers, historians and books — our official record.

Light memory storage happens when an experience is so high in vibration and harmony that finite chemicals can no longer be sustained. It's easy for an untangled observer to tune into this level of high intensity bright light, where a memory is fractured, fractalized, and easily manipulable. When they tell the story one way or another, or it is not in their memory at all, the past has changed, and our existence here assumes the change from the entangled reality of birth. The global narrative takes form and becomes the implicate order we accept through our judgment journey. History has been so heavily manipulated that maybe ten percent is true. We all have spiritual contracts which underwrite the memories as true. This allows us to participate in the implicate order here as a finite being on the journey back to the infinite. This is why we go through the great forgetting.

Hologram

In quantum realm there is no locality and non-locality. It's all one divine hologram, an infinite universe with all different levels of unique expression in form and non-form. The perspective of the implicate and explicate order ends. This is the void space. It's part of the universal hologram. A barren place, hence the name — the void space. The implicate and explicate unfolds in the the sea of consciousness.

The unentangled observer appears in many forms. Cats were created from the ground up as a skinsuit so beings could learn unentangled observation. There are many skinsuits that are unentangled observers. Certain gut gnomes we have can be unentangled observers. Cats are the most prolific, common not just on this world but millions of others as well. Jelly fish and certain breeds of coral can be unentangled observers, to give a couple more examples.

DNA

DNA is part of the founder's technology. It is the connective tissue from the ocean of awareness and sea of consciousness to a light based wisdom, intelligence, and consciousness for any animated biological or non-biological entity. It was fundamental when this universe was being created, a unique experience compared to other universes. There are many variations of DNA. Non-biological DNA is solidified matter which can have DNA based rungs and structures within its growth patterns, with its own inherent intelligence. The crystal and mineral communities don't need to walk to have an experience. Walking is a unique experience. An entire line of creation springs from it.

The DNA strand organization, or the strands themselves, create the weave of the DNA, the encoding of the strands. Every strand represents a different level and capacity of memory storage. They enfold into an implicate order of greater awareness. DNA can store frequencies of time. This how we remember past lives, but not the only way. There are other ways to remember past lives. The organization of your strands, and the rungs that connect your strands, determine how much you can remember from past lives. Certain strands block out all past lives — negative strands of wisdom and awareness. Many people within the awakening will replace negative with positive strands. On the other side of the awakening new strands will be added to our capacity.

Hologram

DNA is eighty percent memories. This is a fundamental understanding. Science and spirituality must realize this. We live in a photonic light reality with rules — how we incarnate, express, exchange, and pass on.

All the world's a stage, And all the men and women merely players; They have their exits and their entrances;

Shakespeare As You Like It

DNA is the encoding, the soul. The light body is the cipher that decodes and unpacks the experience. As we come back many times to the same type of living, we store memories in DNA lineages — bloodlines — This is how we imagine immortality in the infancy of self-awareness — born again and again into a lineage with our stored memories. Our soul family incarnation process aligns us to the bigger concept of perpetuity. The search is always for the immortal soul, the final state of being.

One generation passeth away, and another generation cometh: but the earth abideth for ever.

Ecclesiastes 1:4

We don't teach DNA lineage on the planet anymore. We are looking at DNA through the lens of the fourth industrial revolution. How can we hack it, spike it, tweak it. We're like the monkeys beside the black obelisk in Stanley Kubrick's 2001: A Space Odyssey. DNA is light in another form, visible in one spectrum and invisible in another. Memory is not physical. It's a form of light stored in an experience. As streams of consciousness we have thousands of sub-carrier codes of millions experiences inside us. We only need tune into the memory and we can go into that stream of experience at any scale we desire.

Our forms are programmed to harmony — the other twenty percent of our DNA is not necessarily entangled with consciousness. Seven percent is made up of harmony, frequency, and vibration. The remaining thirteen percent corresponds to how the spiritual codes and contracts unfold in linear and none-linear time, what agencies you work or don't work with, and how no-time beings can consciously entangle with the time based you to create a brand new contract that is need for change, auditing of the self.

To use our DNA instrument to the fullest capacity, to tap into our skills, we need to stop giving away our core energy. Instead of preserving and tapping into our own source energy connection we keep using the background electromagnetic frequencies to stay motivated — the white noise of our spiritual ghetto. There are so many voices now, echoing through our heads like a hundred tourists visiting an echo chamber in the Grand Canyon — self-help nonsense with no understanding of the deeper strata of consciousness and existence; an endless parade of hawkers projecting their bellowing pitch in the thoroughfare, stocks, bonds, cryptos, minerals, security, prosperity, success; family narratives of fear and doubt inherited by unconscious epigenetic propagation; a million and one voices echoing through the consciousness of the twenty-first century man and woman. How do we ever hear silence?

Hologram

There comes a point where the living algorithm of life transcends into the ocean of consciousness. How do we get there anchored down by the consciousness minutia of our time, a time of vast technological advancement that has increased rather than decreased the burden of survival. Only humanity, alone among creatures on this planet, works against its own best interest, or can be persuaded to do so quite easily. We're not an equation. we're not just binary numbers. We're so much more than that. The broken man, the man on the cross, has been the template for some time, and it's still working today. It's not who or what we are. The fetish of deconstruction has poisoned the world. We are a holistic creation creation, the human being, living in a holistic system we voluntarily left under the blindness of trauma. Science, cosmology, economics, and spirituality should have been unified generations ago. They were, in fact. The Yugas of Vedic astrology are real — the gold, silver, bronze, and iron age of the western esoteric syllabus.

Our environment does not activate us by itself. This is the free will choice of the sentient being. It has to be in our fate, our fetus planning, to even kindle the curiosity to look at the invisible webs of creation. Sooner or later we are taken within to complete the journey to knowledge. External sources can provide the initial catalyst — a book, a retreat, encountering an awakened person, initiation into spiritual practice, or plant propelled journeys into the fourth and fifth dimensions, ayahuasca, peyote, mushrooms, or any other number of chemical to light stimulants in various shamanic cultures throughout the earth — but none may be considered a path unto themselves, and they must be abandoned once they have proved out. Yes, there are other dimensions. Now choose a path, a discipline, a practice and earn it.

Celestial Medium Journey

The journey to celestial medium begins with self-mastery by daily practice, which becomes a monthly practice, a yearly practice, then a constant practice, a function as ingrained as breathing. A celestial medium expands consciousness to become a translator of the blue road of spirit, knowledge of the spirit and the ancestry working with you.

Mastering the finite I am while acknowledging the infinite I am creates the medium space by which consciousness skirts the sides of infinite and finite. The celestial medium takes up the million letter alphabet in this space, compresses it with their precognitive workforce, and uploads to the implicate I am. The explicate I am — the incarnation — consciously downloads it to process and manifest. It then returns the data back to the implicate I am — the being in the sea of consciousness within the ocean of awareness — uploading back to the universe. The human mind and body can't hold the information forever. This is the back and forth method between the implicate and explicate I am through the process of the celestial medium.

There is a receive, respond, retain, release process in passing higher frequency information from the body's perspective. Bring it into the body. Unpack it. Decode it. This avails the data to your higher frequency level. The packed information goes up to the crown chakra and back to the original source — the frequency pattern of the universe around us.

We are incarnate life forms here now. We are not up there in the celestial realms. It creates distortion in us if we hold on to it. Many channelers end up corrupt because they don't let go of the information. They hoard it. The distortions lie unconsciousness in their bodies. It can lead to possession. There are external sources that want to possess bodies hoarding information. They dissolve the information into pure energy and feed on it. Letting go of that information is one-hundred percent conscious effort. We must say, I am packing this information back up, knowing full well that I cannot hold on to it, and then release it back to the universe.

Our bodies adapt and evolve in this celestial medium process. We can't really say we're both — an incarnate life form and a non I am on the celestial medium side, which perceives time in a much longer length. Whatever agenda the micro-soul has. it's dwarfed compared to the celestial medium's length of time. The agendas don't match through length of time, but they are both in equal experience simultaneously. You experience the super long game of the celestial mind, and the long game of the I am. It works with the higher spirit to be in the medium space. From the medium space it transfers the allness of the I am into the code, downloads the code, returns to the I am state, manifests with the code, then puts the code back into the celestial space. We simultaneously experience local time to super long galactic time, going back and forth, the finite and infinite I am equally and continuously changing frequency without competition for temporal dominance.

A self-spawned celestial medium is a planet's translator, able to speak to and communicate with other celestial minds, and it translates from the higher frequency to the lower density energy, allowing everyone to understand the common messages. The seventh-dimensional seed planet as a celestial medium is a bit different. Celestial mediums can exist on every planet, wherever there's a celestial mind. A lot of celestial mediums will spawn before a planet's demise, right before the light goes out. This has happened on other worlds. To save their own life force, the celestial mediums travel into the future, to an endpoint of its consciousness, just before the light of the planet — the literal stream of energy — fades out completely. They locate the front point of their earliest celestial mind and absorb it, then they seed their celestial mind on another planet.

The life of celestial minds is inspiring, like everything else in creation. It's really just one thing happening at different levels. Just as the white wisp of seedling leaves the dandelion with the slightest wind at just the right time in its cycle, so too are the seeds of celestial minds blown from one field to another, one world to another in this scale. It's just life. No different than the turnings of nature here. Celestial minds have their own astral worlds. They have their own life reviews. They possess a variety of means to stave off death, natural processes by which something is spawned from their world.

Hologram

When we have elevated ourselves, we transfer consciousness of our allness to become the celestial medium of peace. It operates in the physical world, the red and blue road, and on the celestial road with its many brothers and sisters. We learn through astrology how different worlds affect us. We work with celestial minds which incarnate into our world and other worlds, both physical and non-physical, and as entangled and unentangled observers. We work with them at the celestial medium level.

Becoming a celestial medium of peace is our birthright. The journey is linear at first then it becomes fully non-linear. The linear process is self-mastery. We come to understand the length of our waveform, how strong and potent we are. This is so when we can go through the conscious choice to become the celestial medium between celestial minds and surface minds for the generation. We learn how to bring unique concepts of peace to places and space of time that are looking for that medium to inspire new layers of peace. As more people come into celestial mediumship, the global narrative will become more irrelevant. Humanity will slowly realize the global narrative is irrelevant to the bigger streams of time. We will detoxify from roman numeral time, and we could probably enter a system of commerce beyond the Babylonian money system. There are celestial exchange systems that allow matter to matter manifestations from one density to another.

The celestial medium of peace role is not for everybody. It will be a percentage of the population. The celestial medium of peace souls had the contract to do this twenty or forty years ahead of time. It has been seeded in the three to five previous generations. The event is being prepared. The celestial medium of peace group is a kind of celestial support system. They are creating concepts and language to navigate the changes. The celestial medium of peace will be there for anyone to connect with our planet.